KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- If you suffer from seasickness, request a mid-ships cabin where there is less motion.
- If you are unlikely to spend much time in your cabin an inside cabin is a cost saver.
- For better views from your cabin, book an Ocean View cabin.
- Should you want to spend time in the privacy of your cabin choose a Balcony Class cabin with sea views.
- Many ships offer multiple dining outlets and some include speciality dining restaurants (at a surcharge).
- There are usually two dinner sittings for each cruise ship. Speak to the Maitre d' should you wish to change once on board.
- Carefully check the dress code for your cruise and pack smart attire for the formal 'Captain's Dinner' night (Depending on cruise line).
- Gratuities are included in selected cruise packaged holidays. If not included check the gratuity policy and budget accordingly.
- Some cruise lines provide you with the opportunity to pre-book shore excursions, speciality dining and other onboard services online, once you have a confirmed booking. It is advisable to use this service.
- Packing your bags: As a rule of thumb – roll clothes that you will relax in and fold formal attire.
- For peace of mind, purchase travel insurance. Contact your ASATA Travel Agent for more info.
- Carry sufficient medicines (and prescriptions) and a spare pair of spectacles.
- Make copies of passports and visas in case of loss.

Enquire for various cruise itineraries as each cruise line offers a variety of options. Why not consider pre- & post cruise holidays? Contact Thompsons for options.
